TERRY PETTUS PARK RENOVATION
ONLINE MEETING

While we cannot meet in person right now, your input is important to us! Seattle Parks and Recreation and our design team Jones & Jones Architects and Landscape Architects would like to invite you to participate in the future of Terry Pettus Park. We are excited to announce that Seattle Parks and Recreation acquired additional land to the south of the existing park, allowing for a new expanded park design.
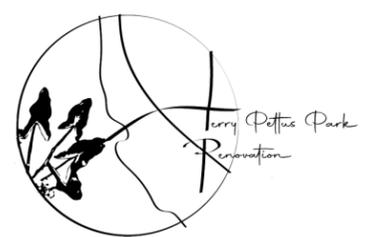

When asked what features would enhance your enjoyment of the park, we heard the community's top priorities are habitat enhancement, native plants and trees, shoreline restoration, more seating, better dock and launch area for kayaks and canoes, and better access to the water. We also heard that better visibility into the park was desired.

The design team has listened to the community's early input from this spring and are eager to share four concept designs with you! Please use the link below to register for an online Zoom public meeting, where you will hear about the design concepts, have an opportunity to weigh in on the concept proposals and ask the design team questions.

Terry Pettus Park is located at 2001 Fairview Ave E.
